In Variations on a Theme of Joseph Haydn, Brahms travels in time, using ancient musical forms to explore possible futures. In Beethoven's Second Symphony, anarchic glee subverts Classical elegance. Between the two big Bs, precisely in the present, Esa-Pekka Salonen debuts his longtime friend Anders Hillborg's witty and colorful new Piano Concerto, performed with genial sophistication by soloist Emanuel Ax.

California Festival: To the Edge

In kínēma, Esa-Pekka Salonen's lyrical imagination takes flight via five cinematic scenes for solo clarinet and chamber orchestra, performed here by Principal Clarinet Carey Bell. Emerging Black Composers Project winner Jens Ibsen grew up in the Bay Area, where he soaked up samba, soul, R&B, and progressive metal along with the music of Ghana and the African diaspora—all influences you might detect in Drowned in Light, a world premiere. Igor Stravinsky's turbulent Symphony in Three Movements, which he called his "war symphony," reflects the rampant destruction in Europe and Asia.

Composer Gabriella Smith conjures the spaces and sounds of California in the organ concerto Breathing Forests, performed here by James McVinnie. Igor Stravinsky depicts a festive, folk-inflected Slavic wedding in his ballet Les Noces, augmented by Steven Stucky's orchestration. Stravinsky's Octet for Winds and Brass, a uniquely scored neoclassical work, was inspired by a late-night dream. Esa-Pekka Salonen conducts.

Dudamel Conducts Brahms 2

In the one-movement concerto Odisea, commissioned by Dudamel for Jorge Glem, Venezuelan composer Gonzalo Grau highlights his country's national instrument, the versatile, four-stringed cuatro. On the surface Johannes Brahms' Second Symphony seems like a sunny summer idyll, but shadows abound.

SOLOIST: Lisa Batiashvili, violin*

Salonen: All Sibelius

A Sibelius deep dive conducted by Esa-Pekka Salonen: Finlandia is an anthem for a nascent nation still fighting for its very identity after a century of Russian rule. The Violin Concerto, here performed by Lisa Batiashvili, was a vehicle for Sibelius to channel all his virtuoso ambitions. The First Symphony would be Sibelius' international breakthrough. With deft touches of Tchaikovsky and Berlioz, it's easy to see why.

Jean Sibelius: Finlandia, Opus 26
Jean Sibelius: Violin Concerto in D minor, Opus 47*

Drama abounds in Shostakovich's score for The Great Citizen, a fictionalized biopic about a Bolshevik hero. In his Third Symphony, Prokofiev recycles music from his yet-to-be-staged supernatural opera The Fiery Angel. Walton's searing and sumptuous Viola Concerto polarized early listeners but ended up launching his career. Gustavo Gimeno conducts with Principal Viola Jonathan Vinocour as soloist.

Ravel's Mother Goose & Schoenberg's Erwartung

Ravel's enchanting Mother Goose characters come to vivid life in a performance conducted by Esa-Pekka Salonen. As The Woman, soprano Mary Elizabeth Williams leaps and plunges between emotional extremes: hopeful and terrified, enraged and miserable.

Composed over four turbulent years, Robert Schumann's only piano concerto, here performed by Yefim Bronfman, features a lustrous intermezzo, blazing bravura passages, and encoded tributes to the composer's wife, muse, and finest interpreter. Bruckner's Fourth Symphony, the "Romantic," was his first major composition to earn real applause. Esa-Pekka Salonen conducts.
